

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

What's new? Old friends at college reunions always ask. The same question is heard each fall as students and faculty reassemble for a new term. It's usually a casual question, encouraging small talk. Sometimes it can be a pervous question, betraying anxiety about what lies ahead. But it can also be a very serious and provocative question.

What should we expect from the year ahead? We ought to have some idea. Chances are we'll not get much more than we expect. Limited achievement is often nothing else than lazy expectation left hehiod by unnoticed opportunities.

Sometimes, of course, we miss our golden momest because we are preoccupied with inappropriate expectations. Many Americans expect education to he a ticket to success, for example.

Not long ago, CBS presented a documentary on degree mills in America, highlighting an operation in California which offers reproductions of diplomas from almost any university you can think of -- with your name affixed if you wish! Even the price is right! A similar company was exposed by my alma mater io Atlanta a few years ago. Academic counterfeiters seem to lurk io every dark hole around. American education may be in recession, but offering ersatz degrees is a growth industry!

Why the demand? It is common enough to want something for nothing, but to get nothing for something like the prices charged for these bogus degrees? That's something!

I suspect this sort of fraud prospers because society is somewhat disallusioned with the pation's colleges and universities. Not only is what we produce sometimes hard to distinguish from the diplomas we award, but it is often difficult for the public to know what should be expected from us. Despite the jokes and cartoons, a college is not a factory where students are run in at one end, pounded with facts and theories and run out the other end, all polished and ready to perform. A college is an incubator for the mind, a place where discovery becomes a preoccupation, where buman experience is refined into insight. A college degree is not a certificate in technology; it is not necessarily the doorway to success. Nor should it be! Robert Frost expressed the heart of the matter when he observed that "education is banging around until you've caught on."

The year abead won't be a "quickie." With luck it will be an eye-opening and extended conversation about what's new these days.

Walter J. Heim

We announce with sincere regret the deaths of John G. Detwiler on July 8 in Florida, and Walter J. Heim on August 3 in Williamsport.

Mr. Detwiler became a trustee of Lycoming College in 1964 and served as Acting President for a year beginning August 1, 1968. He was a generous benefactor and the Detwiler Planetarium was named for his family.

Mr. Heim became a trustee in 1965 and served as Chairman of the Executive Committee for many years. He, too, was a generous henefactor to Lycoming. Only weeks before his death, he agreed to accept a position of leadersbip in our upcoming capital campaign. We shall indeed miss them both.

PARENTS' WEEKEND OCTOBER 27-29 NEW FACULTY AND STAFF APPOINTMENTS

Miss Hill is a 1973 graduate of Lycoming College and has earned the master of arts in philosophy at the University of North Carolina, where she is presently working for her Ph.D.

Dr. Jex graduated from the University of Toledo and received his master of music degree at Bowling Green State University and his D. M. A. at The Cleveland Institute of Music. He has played the trumpet professionally with several bands and orchestras and has taught music at the University of Toledo.

Mrs. Lesko graduated from Harpur College and received her master of arts in art history from the State University of New York at Binghamton, where she is presently completing requirements for her doctorate.

Murphy earned his B.S. and M.S. from Drexel University. He has been a teaching assistant while working for his master's degree.

Dr. Nelson received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. at Northwestern University and has studied a year at the University of Florence in Italy as a Fulhright Scholar. He has had tesching experience in both Spanish and French.

Mrs. Stone received both her B.A. and M.A. from the University of Michigan. She had previously taught part-time at Lycoming.

Stricker graduated from Niagara University and received his M.B.A. at Fairleigh-Dickinson University. He recently resigned as vice president in charge of finance at London Records, New York City, to enter the teaching profession on a fulltime hasis. He had previously taught night courses at Elmira College before entering private husiness.

Mrs. Studier graduated from The State University of New York at Oneoota and received both her master of education and doctor of education from The University of Georgia.

Troxel earned his A.B. from Oberlin College and his M.A. from Indiana University. He is presently a candidate for his doctor's degree at Columbia University.

Dr. Wild earned his bachelor of arts degree at Emory University and the M.A. and Ph.D. at Ohio State University. He had also received the master of divinity degree (post doctoral) from Ysle University Divinity School.

ADMISSIONS

ROBERT A. DOYLE, director of admissions at Roanoke College, Salem, Va., for the last five years, has been named to the same position at Lycoming College, effective August 1.

Doyle will fill a vacancy created by the resignation earlier this year of FRANK J. KAMUS, of Jersey Shore, to accept a position with Customs Awards Limited, State College.

Doyle graduated from Juniata College in 1960 with a bachelor of arts degree in economics and business administration and also did graduate work in student personnel administration st the University of Colorado.

The new Lycoming College admissions director accepted a position as director of placement at his alma mater following graduation. In 1968 he left Juniata to become assistant director of development and later director of admissions at Hood College. He left the field of higher education temporarily in 1972 to become an account executive for Ashton-Worthington, Inc., a publishing and audiovisual firm in Baltimore. After 18 months with Ashton-Worthington, Doyle returned to the field of higher education when he accepted the position as director of admissions at Roanoke College.

Doyle, a native of Ferndale, Pa., and a graduate of Ferndale High School, is married and the father of a son. Sean.

Mrs. MARY EILEEN HERRING, of 40 Rural Avenue, Lewisburg, has been named assistant director of admissions at Lycoming Col-

Mrs. Herring, who will begin her new duties at Lycoming on September 7, received her bachelor of arts degree with honors from Albright College in 1975. She participated in numerous extra-curricular activities while at college, including cheerleading, and received a number of honors while attending Albright. She was named to Phi Delta Sigma, honorary alumni sorority, and received the Golden "A" Award for highest student honor. She was also listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Mrs. Herring fills the vacancy created by the resignation of CONNIE WISER last spring.

Memories of Walter Heim and John Detwiler are indelible because of the marks these men made upon our lives and the destiny of Lycoming College. Their lives are models for any who would place service before self-interest, integrity before expediency. They were generous spirits moving through troubled times to create while others destroyed, to inspire and encourage others who cowered in fear and doubt. Their accomplishments on our behalf were gigantic. Strange that we rememher them so clearly because of those unnumbered little incidents, those inconspicuous personal episodes which revealed the character and integrity of these dear friends.

"It must be boree in mind," as Plutarch says in his life of Alexander the Great, "that the most glorious exploits do not always furnish us with the clearest discoveries of virtue in men; sometimes a matter of less moment, an expression or a jest, informs us better of their character and inclinations. . . . Therefore, as portrait painters are more exact in the lines and features of the face, in which the character is seen, than is other parts of the body, so I must be allowed to give my more particular attention to the marks and indicators of the souls of men. . . . "

FREDERICK E. BLUMER President of the College

Orientation sessions for newly elected trustees were held on campus this summer for the first time. A variety of topics, including the aims of the College, its organizational structure, and the roles of faculty, administrators and trustees, were covered during the two-day meeting. Above, left to right: President Blumer, Dr. M. L. Sharrah, Dr. Fred A. Pennington, Harold D. Hershberger, Jr., Ms. Onalee R. Sabin, and Howard C. Beach. Mrs. Robert B. Jooes and Mr. John C. Dr. Richard Hughes Lectures in Spain

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Hughes at the University of Navarra Medical School in Pamplona, Spain (Mrs. Hughes is the former Diane Stalker, '74.)

On August 28, 1978, Dr. Richard Hughes delivered a lecture at the University of Navarra Medical School. The title of his address was "Moral Destiny and Relational Cosmology." The lecture is now being published in the Swiss Journal for Psychology. The occasion was the Eighth Colloquium of the International Research Community for Destiny Analysis. This is a new and comprehensive school of medical psychology developed by the Hungarian psychiatrist Leopold Szondi. Destiny analysis is based upon medical genetics, theoretical biology, and ego psychology. Dr. Hughes is one of the principal investigators at work in this field.

Students Participate in Archeological Project

Peter and Keith measure a wall to be drawn and described.

KEITH J. GOETTING, a senior and son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Goetting, of 486 Colonial Road, Ridgewood, NJ, and PETER T. BAXTER, sophomore and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Baxter, of 82 Walnut Street, New Providence, NJ, spent the summer as archaeological interns in the Historic District of Paterson, NJ, one of many summer experiences available to Lycoming students. The eleven-million dollar project financed by Federal and State grants is sponsored by the American Institute of Archaeology and intends to restore and redevelop the historic mill buildings and water raceway system into an exciting multipleuse district to act as a catalyst for the rebirth of the city of Paterson.

Two hundred years ago, on July 10, 1778, Alexander Hamilton visited the 77-foot high, 280-foot wide Great Falls of the Passaic River with General George Washington. During their famous picnic, Hamilton envisioned harnessing the mighty Great Falls to build America's first industrial City. Three years later Hamilton was instrumental in the building of a water power raceway system from the Passaic River to new industrial mills.

The abundance of inexpensive energy provid-2d by the raceway attracted many creative men and women to Paterson. They developed and improved products and industries including textiles, textile machinery, Colt revolvers, steam locomotives, flax, jute, Holland submarines, Wright aircraft engines, silk apparel, and many more. As a result, Paterson is justly called the "Cradle of American Industry."

During the mid-1960's most of the raceway system and many historic mill buildings were scheduled for demolition by the proposed Route 20 Highway. However, a citizen's group successfully organized to stop the highway and preserve the mill area. On June 6, 1976, President Gerald R. Ford personally designated the entire 119 acre Great Falls of the Passaic Historic District as a National Historic Landmark, the first industrial district in the United States so honored!

Keith and Peter are majoring in Near East Culture and Archaeology, Keith also doublemajoring in History. Their summer experience gave them the opportunity to put into practice the theory learned in the classroom. Both began their internships as apprentices and gradually were promoted to assistants until for the last several weeks they participated as Area (or Trench) supervisors fully responsible for the excavation and the recording process. They were also engaged in historical research, artifact cataloguing and processing, drawing of architectural features, as well as the problems of archaeological stratigraphy encountered in every archaeological project.

The internships were supervised by Dr. Eduardo Guerra, coordinator of the Near East Culture and Archaeology Major. Keith expects to return next summer to do some more archaeology in Paterson and Peter hopes to "dig" in Israel where Lycoming has been "digging" for some time.

This is but one example of the exciting educational opportunities Lycoming offers its students through the college's internship program,

Robin Newman Interns At the State Department

ROBIN J. NEWMAN, senior history and foreign languages (Spanish and French) major from Gettysburg, spent seven weeks this summer as an intern with the Department of State in Washington. She was assigned to the Office of Caribbean Affairs where she performed a variety of tasks. Her principal task during the initial weeks was to familiarize herself with the issues and problems of two country desks, Trinidad and Tobago/Guyana and Haiti, in anticipation of assuming the duties of the desk officers while they were on annual leave. She served as rapporteur (notetaker) for the U.S. Delegation during military base negotiations with the Turks and Caico Islands, a British Crown Colony. She wrote the official negotiating record of the three-day session, as well as the summary cables sent to Embassies Nassau and London. the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of Defense, and the concerned facility commanders.

As substituting desk officer for Haiti, Robin wrote a summary of all outstanding human rights issues with that government for the Acting Secretary. Robin observed that her work involved a lot of writing, and apparently her supervisors were very well pleased with what she wrote.

Robin received college credit for her services, but no pay. She was impressed by the quality and dedication of the people she worked with and remembers having lunch with Ambassador Solomon from Haiti as one of the highlights of an exciting summer. It was a busy time at the Office of Caribbean Affairs, what with meetings of the Organization of American States and the World Bank Conference on Caribbean Trade and Development. But week ends gave Robin a chance to relax a bit, visit the Smithsonian, the Kennedy Center and other points of interest in Washington.

What began as a suggestion and lead from our Career Development Center turned into seven weeks of valuable experience that may have pointed Robin Newman toward a career in foreign service after graduation.

An interesting postscript to the above account:
The program she participated in began in 1961, and among the first group to have this intern experience was Dr. James R. Jose,
Dean of the College. He was a graduate student at American University at the time.

Robin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Newman, of 24 Baltimore Street, Gettysburg.

Al Smith Climbs Mt. Rainier

This past July Al Smith, Associate Dean of Student Services, climbed Mount Rainier in Washington state with a group of 24 climbers. Al mentioned that the sensation of climbing through glaciers while roped together in a party of five was a "never-to-be-forgotten experience." The final assault to the summit of Mount Rainer, 14,410 ft., started at 1:00 a.m. and they were on top on a beautiful, clear day at 8:00 a.m. and could see for 250 miles.

Fall Sports Under Way

BRUCE L. SWANGER solid. Girardi alternated five running backs and three divided the touchdowns while combining for 271 yards rushing. Kevin McVey, a senior from Philadelphia, was the top gainer with 109 yards on 22 carries. Ty Bornman, a senior from Marysville, added 23 on 7 attempts; Jay Rubino rushed for 54 on 16 carries; Greg Ebbert pounded out 41 on just 4 rushes, and Dave Venezia, of Philadelphia, tacked on 12 in 3 attempts. McVey, Rubino and Ebbert scored the touchdowns.

The remainder of the Warrior schedule includes six Middle Atlantic Conference games with Albright, Wilkes, Susquehanna, Delaware Valley, Juniata and Upsala, and two non-conference contests with Western Maryland and Dickinson

WARRIORS OPEN SEASON WITH WIN

When head coach Frank Girardi greeted a squad of more than 80 candidates for the 1978 Warrior football team, his two most pressing problems appeared to he at quarterback and in the defensive secondary.

Neither of the quarterbacks who had shared duties in a 6-3 season in 1977 had returned to school, leaving Girardi with three freshmen, a sophomore with no varsity experience, and a sophomore transfer from Lock Haven State College to fight for the starting quarterhack assignment. And the entire starting defensive secondary had graduated, creating a large void in a defensive unit which was also decimated by graduation in some of the front line positions. It was obvious to the coaching staff that the Warriors were not likely to wio national honors in various defensive categories as they had been doing for the last three years.

Although one game does not a season make, the Warriors 24-14 opening day victory over Lock Haven State indicated that neither of the two problems may be as acute as first thought. Rick Burd, the transfer quarterback from Lock Haven, won the opening day assignment, and, after a slow first half during which the only score was a 30-yard field goal by Robbi Bleistein, a junior from Trevorton, Burd began moving the Warriors in the second half. And the inexperienced defensive secondary, comprised of three sophomores and a junior, acquitted itself reasonably well.

Showing the poise of a veteran, Burd directed the Warriors on three sustained second-half drives of 89, 53 and 35 yards for touchdowns for a 24-0 lead with five minutes remaining. It mattered little that Lock Haven, playing against the Warrior reserves in the final minutes, broke a long 68-yard play for their first score against the Warriors. Nor was their too much concern on the Lycoming hench about the eventual outcome when seconds later the Bald Eagles converted the only fumble lost by Lycoming into a second score. The initial touchdown was the first against Lycoming by a Lock Haven team in the last three games.

Only one of the starting defensive backs, Jim Crognale, a junior from Philadelphia, had any previous varsity experience. All three sophomores, Francis Harvey, of Norristown; Bob DeLuca, of Willingboro, N.J., and Paul DeJoseph, of Philadelphia, were seeing varsity action for the first time. The Bald Eagles completed 5 of 10 passes, none for long yardage, for a total of 58 yards. The Warriors picked off one Lock Haven aerial.

The Warriors ground game appears to be

FIELD HOCKEY TEAM OPTIMISTIC

Eleven returning letter winners from the 1977 field bockey team which compiled a 4-6-1 record reported to coach Louise Courtoey when pre-season practice began early in September. The solid nucleus of veterans has generated a considerable amount of optimism about the possibility of a winning season for the first time since the team compiled a 5-2 record in 1973, just one year after the sport was introduced at Lycoming. The veterans are led by six seniors who have been together for four years. They include Renee Brosins, of Swiftwater; Nancy Callery, of Malvern; Ruth Gustafson, of Williamsport; Joanne Hullings, of Bristol; Joyce Leahy, of Philadelphia and Ann Weitzel, of Hershey.

Other letter winners include Karen Clark, a sophomore from Delhi, N.Y.; Mary Foster, a sophomore from Parkton, Md.; Linda Kerns, a sophomore from Danboro, Pa.; Marleoe Moyer, a sophomore from Sellersville, Pa.; Pat Nezelek, a sophomore from Endwell, N.Y., and Laurie Shea, a sophomore from Oreland,

The Lyco stickers will open a 10-match schedule at home on Monday, September 18, with Manafield and conclude the season on Saturday, October 21, at Delaware Valley.

BOOTERS HAVE 11 LETTERMEN

When pre-season practice opened late in August, Nelson Phillips, coach of the Warrior soccer team, welcomed 11 returning lettermen from the 1977 team which compiled a 3-10 record. They include Bruce Barr, a junior from East Brunswick, N.J.; Pete Baxter, a sophomore from New Providence, N.J.; Jack Coapman, a sophomore from Horseheads, N.Y.; Bart Landzert, a sophomore from Franklin Lakes, N.J.; Jack Lea, a junior from Brick Town, N.J.; Mike Lebo, a senior from Carlisle, Pa.; Bob Lewis, a senior from Shavertown, Pa.; Stu Mc-Cracken, a junior from Westfield, N.J.; Scott Mindrebo, a sophomore from Franklin, N.J.; Joe Small, a junior from Stamford, Coan.; and Jon Vandevander, a senior from Ramsey, N.J.

The Warrior booters will play four Middle Atlantic Conference opponents in the 13-match season which opens September 20 at home with Dickinson and concludes October 25 with Elizabethtown at home.

SIX RETURN FOR TENNIS TEAM

Coach Deborab Holmes will be building ber 1978 fall tennis team around aix veterans returning from last year, including Sue Burch, a sophomore from Williamsport; Sue Butterworth, a senior from Duxbury, Mass.; Kim Eddy, a senior from Waynesboro; Bobbi Gill, a sophomore from Chatham, N.J.; Pam Masser, a sophomore from Dover, N.J.; and Aane Parry, a junior from New City, N.Y. Several Williamsport area freshmen, including Betsy Rabold, of Williamsport, and Debbie Falk, of Montours ville, are expected to be in contention for starting assignments.

The team will play an eight-match schedule beginning with Mausfield State College at home on Monday, September 18. They will close the season against the same team at Mansfield on October 18. Between they will meet Kings, Marywood, Scranton, Lock Haven, Wilkes and Bloomsburg.

'Hoss' Doctor Keeps Dobbin on Mend

Climbing over a fence to diagnose the malady of an Arabian filly or a Percheron stallion is all in a day's work for Dr. PATRICIA B. McQUISTON. (Class of '71)

A veterinarian who specializes in the treatment of large animals-specifically horses--the Cogan Station R.D.1 resident grew up in the Middle East.

"I was reared in Saudi Arabia and Lebanon," she said. "My parents bought my first horse--an Arabian--when I was five years old."

"We were a family of three horses," she said. "Arabians, of course."

In Lebanon she taught riding, schooled horses, and joined a showjumping team.

Her interest in solid-hoofed herbivorous mammals never waned from preschool years through undergraduate days at Lycoming College. After receiving a baccalaureate degree with a major in biology, Dr. McQuiston attended the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine in Philadelphia.

She is now associated with Little's Veterinary Hospital on Lycoming Creek Road. Her medical practice is primarily an ambulatory outpatient service. Occasionally, however, she will have an unscheduled office call.

"Once in a while a horse will pull in at the back parking lot," she said, referring to the animal hospital.

For the most part, Dr. McQuiston confines her practice to "house" calls which include dusk-to-dawn emergency situations.

One year ago when a horse went through a bridge at Marsh Hill, Dr. McQuiston was summoned to the scene of the accident. She treated the animal which "had torn up one hind leg and had a hole in its lower lip," she said.

She is called frequently to administer to animals that have injured legs on a piece of fence. Routinely she performs annual checkups, vaccinates, and treats for respiratory diseases, colic, and tetanus.

"I don't do cattle because there are other veterinarians in town who treat them," she said.

Although she prefers to work in the immediate geographical area, Dr. McQuiston journeys occasionally into the hinterland.

"I was in Eagles Mere recently," she said, "to treat a 'patient' whose owner spends the summer there."

Her calls are made in a four-wheel-drive truck, the back of which houses her medical equipment,

On weekends, Dr. McQuiston takes a busman's holiday.

"I'm at a horse show almost every Sunday," she said. "I show the horses that I train."

She has a one-woman campaign to make jumpers out of Arabians. She also takes young or "green" horses and trains them for show purposes. Thus far this year she has collected 15 ribbons.

In ber "spare" moments, when not administering to ailing steeds or attending horse shows, Dr. McQuiston works with needles of the nonmedical variety. She recently completed a mink saddle pad for an Arabian gelding named "Hallany Wedgeym,"

Last December she made a Santa Claus costume for one of the borses at the Pleasant Valley Boarding Stable at Cogan Station R.D.1. Each year, Mrs. J. Robert Houseman, operator of the stable, stages a Christmas party for her "boarders."

The costume which Dr. McQuiston fashioned was replete with red halter-beard, Santa Claus hat, and black stretch boots. The horse carried gifts in its saddle bags.

Roger H. May '75 believes that his liberal arts background has helped him to adapt from the conventional to the open space clas ROGER H. MAY '75 is a teacher in the Lycoming Valley Junior High School in the Williamsport School District. This is Williamsport's newest school using the "open space" concept in teaching.

Hoger was a history major in college, but he believes that his liberal arts background has helped him to easily adapt from the conventional to the open space classroom. He enjoys working with junior high youth, seeing them mature as they find themselves in this. sometimes, confusing period of life.

Roger was older than most of his classmates at Lycoming. He had managed a retail store and spent three years in the service before college. During college he had a night shift job, but he still found time to be very much involved in campus activities. He served as president of the Student Association of Lycoming College and was a very active member of Alpha Phi Omega. He is currently the advisor to this fraternity.

His interest in extra-curricular activities has carried over into his job. At the junior high, he is advisor to the Student Council and the Pep Club. He is also on two long range planning committees.

Roger enjoyed Lycoming and especially the professor-student relationship. His advice to current students is to be active in all aspects of college life. "It's a great experience! Don't miss any of it."

Tracing one's ancestors is getting to be an obsession. It is unlikely that those ancestors, if given the opportunity, would be as eager to trace their descendants.

CAMPUS NOTES

DOUGLAS KEIPER, Associate Dean of Student Services, reports two program grants bave been received. The Presser Foundation approved a $500 matching grant to be used for workshop-concerts during the 1978-79 college year. Also received was a $350 grant from the Living Arts Foundation for the presentation of Will Stutts who will be giving a one-man show on Mark Twain.

Dr. MICHAEL HOSKIN, political science department, and Dr. MOON JO, sociology/ anthropology department, delivered a paper on "The Political Impact of Asian Americans" to the Asian American Political Scientists Group meeting at the American Political Science Association in New York City on September 1. The paper is to be published in a book dealiog with the politics of Asian Americans.

Dr. WILLY SMITH, astronomy/physics department, was co-author of an extensive paper which appeared in the June issue of STENDEK, a journal published in Spain. The paper presents the results of the field research of Dr. Smith and two associate Spanish investigators on a UFO sighting near Valencia, Spain, during the summer of 1977.

"The task of acquiring a liberal arts education is a difficult one, "Dr. Roger W. Opdahl, professor of economics, reminded members of the Class of 1982 at the annual Lycoming College Freshman Convocation held on August 28 in the Academic Cepter.

"My intention is not to discourage you in any way, but rather to forewarn you that you will find the path is strewn with obstacles, " Dr. Opdahl told his audience, "Some of the pitfalls you encounter will be of your own making; others exist within the framework of today's colleges; finally, you will find that there are times when the values of the society in which we live are at variance with the nature of objectives of a liberal education.

"However," Dr. Opdahl, concluded, "attaining a liberal education is surely worth whatever toil is required. It is worth much that cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents, but it also has considerable economic value. In the years to come, it will be your best assurance that you will be able to respond to changing job demand. It should prepare you for whatever you encounter during the rest of your life, both in your work and in your leisurc."

Please Reserve A Front-Row Seat For Jack Webb

We subscribe to a clipping service which scans hundreds of newspapers. Any article that mentions Lycoming College is clipped and sent to Bruce Swanger.

He received a very interesting one receptly from the Morning Herald of Uniontown, Peansylvania. The headline reads, "We're not alone, claims Jack Webb" and the article was written by Jerry Buck, an AP television writer. The article runs about ten column inches and relates Webb's belief that " . . . there are other lives out there, both advanced and primitive civilizations. Just as we had a weatward expansion, we've got to have s space expansion." Then there is more about Webb's latest TV show -- "Project U.F.O."

The last two paragraphs are reprinted (copied) from the original article:

> William Jordan played the Air Force investigator in the first season but in the fall when the series switches from Sundays to Thursdays, he will be replaced by Edward Winter Caskey Swarm remains in his role as his assis

> Webb, who starred as the laconic Sgt webb, who starred as the laconic Sgt Joc Friday ("Just the facts, ma'am') in "Dragnet," said he did not want the role himself "The thought never cross-ed my mind," he said "I'm too old and will attend performances at the Arena Theater at Lycoming College

If anyone knows bow Lycoming College got involved, please let us know.

Lycoming College Fund Progress Report

With approximately $60,000 received, we are not yet at the halfway mark. Only about three months remain to push our campaign over the top and your gift is very much needed.

If you have never contributed, we urge you to start a good habit by sending your check. large or small. If you have supported Lycoming College before, don't break a good habit -improve it by increasing your gift this year. Those are the only ways we know of to increase our fund.

Don't forget that many of your employers have matching gift programs and don't fail to take advantage of them to at least double your own gift.

Checks should be payable to Lycoming College Fund. Thanks!

And if you've already sent your check, thanks
